The new EU Directive (2013/30/EU) on safety of offshore oil and gas operations

On 10 June 2013 the EU adopted a Directive on safety of offshore oil and gas operations. The new rules are meant to make sure that the highest safety standards will be followed at every oil and gas platform across Europe. They will also ensure a prompt and effective action in case of accident This would help minimise the possible damage to the environment and the livelihoods of coastal communities. The new directive sets clear requirements that cover the whole lifecycle of all exploration and production activities from design to the final removal of an oil or gas installation. This workshop aims to present and discuss the contents and obligations of the new Directive with the contributions by the Directive authors, authorities and stakeholders.
